

Global Cooling Review by Progressive Pulse

Guitarist Vocalist, Joyce Cooling just released her brand new project, "Global Cooling" out on Group2. This is the first independent project produced alongside her partner in crime, Jay Wagner. The result is a fusion of eclectic sounds and dance rhythms that draw from the global neighborhood of music. Joyce explains, "Global Cooling is like taking a transcontinental flight, touching down in fun, exciting and beautiful places. "We were inspired to travel into uncharted territory, so we really stretched ourselves to get our passports in order. We played with a lot of new instruments and layered tablas, congas, bongos, sitar, berimbau and even accordion over funk, rock and jazz. It was a trip."

Cooling's fan base will appreciate jazz and bluesy tracks like the opening, "Grass Roots", "Rhythm Kitchen" and my favorite, "Dolores in Pink" which is a tribute to Jay Wagner's mom! New listeners will embrace the global sounds and dance beats found in the title track of "Global Cooling" which showcases the exquisite musicianship of Joyce's acoustic guitar rhythms combined with the beautiful piano playing of Wagner alongside a driving dance beat. This song will elevate your mood at any time of the day! "Cobra" explores exotic lands of India and the Far East while "The Red Rose" is a sexy and sensuous track that conjures up a Spanish Matador complete with the romanticism of an accordion playing in the background. Your mind will explore your very own drama/romance when you listen!

Vocal tracks are layered throughout "Global Cooling" showcasing the clarity and richness of Cooling's voice. Favorite tracks include, the stripped down track of "What Are We Waiting For" which encourages us all to make that change personally and globally. With lines like, "The endless sky stretches high above can you see the open door? Did you look and feel the love, What are we waiting for?" You'll be singing along with Joyce when she sings, "Ay Ah Eh Ay, I want to know now, What are we waiting for?" "Chit Chat" is a fun and soulful track that pokes fun of our obsession with gossip and trivial experiences yet encourages us to "write our own life's movie script, the trip is so much better than chit chat!" The entire project is a satisfying and global sensation from a passionate and talented artist!

progressivepulse.com